

CANNIBALS IN AMERICA.

Prof. J. Jacobsen, who has been in the province for some years collecting Indian curiosities for the Hamburg Museum, and writing up the habits, customs and traditions of the aborigines, arrived down on the Boscowitz from Bella Coola. The professor spent all last Winter at Tucalo, the head of the southern-most of the Bentinck arms, which is distant from Bella Coola about eighty miles. Here he found the Indian in his primitive state, a wild, untutored savage, with but a scant knowledge of the arts or customs of civilization. The inlet, running far inland and being every way out of the course of traders or prospectors, is never visited, and the Indians say no white man ever went up to the head of it before. They live there as they do in most places around the coast, by hunting, fishing, deer and fur-bearing animals abounding in large numbers. They are without missionaries, and cannibalism is rampant. The professor tells some of the sickening sights which he witnessed there during the past Winter, which at this day one could scarcely believe capable of being witnessed so near home, did the information not come from a reliable person. The custom is still carried out there of men ambitious for the honors of chieftains basking themselves to the woods, and after remaining there for some time, coming back possessed of a spirit and biting pieces of flesh from the bodies of those whom they first meet. One who wished to graduate last Winter went out and remained from sight several weeks, though he came near the camp occasionally and made night hideous with his yells. When he returned to the tribe he came naked, notwithstanding it was the middle of Winter, with two or three feet of snow on the ground. The first man he met he seized, knocked down, and bit a piece out of his arm, which he chewed ravenously. This was repeated many times over, his face becoming besmeared with blood and presenting a fiendish appearance. The victims of the would-be chieftain's bites received in return for their pains a small pecuniary compensation, and it is an honor to carry the scar. The more scars of this kind decorate an Indian's body the more numerous are his honors, and when he becomes to have a great many he becomes a chieftain himself in a little way. The biter on one occasion made a break for the professor, who soon gave him to understand that he was going to experience something pretty tough if he tackled him. He was not further molested.—Victoria Colonist.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The following, copied from the Wood River Times, says the Idaho Recorder, is worthy of reproduction. Whoever wrote it is a person of brilliant ideas. Here it is:

"The woman who clings to her fallen and outcast husband, and tries to raise him up, is called noble. The man who is brave enough (and the instance is rare) to cling to his erring and fallen wife, and tries to redeem her, is called a fool. Such is the rule of society.

"But is this distinction right? Would a greater number of women become impure if it were removed? Is this state of society really one of its safeguards? Is it not plain that the world would be better if virtuous manhood and womanhood—instead of virtuous womanhood alone—were the basis of good society?

"Man descends to the lowest degradation. Woman follows, extends a loving hand, and would pull him out. Woman stoops to folly and becomes polluted. Man lets her wallow in sin, though one fond word and loving grasp might pull her out—all because society will not let him pass the barrier. What a short-sighted, stupid, despot society is!"

A CRUMB OF COMFORT FOR VICKSBURG.

The news from Vicksburg shows that the river is working its way back toward that historic city, which it deserted in 1876. By cutting through a sort of peninsula on the Louisiana shore the bend, in the concave of which Vicksburg is situated, was converted into a lake and so filled up with sand that the city is approached by steamboats only at high-water seasons. It appears that the river, which for years has been hugging the Louisiana shore, is now digging out a bend below Vicksburg, on the Mississippi side again. This bend will never advance as far up-stream as the one which was destroyed, but it will eat into the Mississippi bluffs to a considerable extent, and at least give Vicksburg a better harbor than it has had for years past.

The Government engineers are also working for the improvement of the city's harbor, and it is hoped that between the forces of nature and the devices of science the chief city of Mississippi will soon again have the big steamers at its wharves.—New Orleans Picayune.

At Tacoma (W. T.), burglaries, or attempted burglaries, are occurring nearly every night.

Colonel Ingersoll's Argument.

New York, June 19.—The case to test the right of hotel keepers to sell liquor to guests Sunday is being argued before the general term of the Supreme Court. The points made by the hotel men's counsel are that the common law distinctly recognizes the difference between a hotel and a tap-room, and that liquor at meals is part of the meal and not a beverage. Colonel Ingersoll, for the hotel men, argued that the contemporaneous construction was the best construction, and the fact that for thirty years the law had been construed as not prohibiting the service of wine with meals at hotels, and the fact that no one had ever been arrested for serving wine, had given that construction the force of law. No decision will be rendered till next week. There was plenty of liquor sold to-day, the hotel men taking chances.

Chinamen Wanted in New York.

New York, June 19.—Apropos to the report that Chinamen are beginning a general movement eastward, the Commercial says: San Francisco will be left in a serious strait as to domestic labor. It says further: From the New York point of view the prospect is much more pleasing. We are just now in straits for want of domestic servants. Even the people who are prepared to pay any price, find it well nigh impossible to secure the help they need. Most New York households are in a chronic state of revolution and a kitchen crisis, and a thousand householders have looked longingly for the advent of the Chinese servants of the Pacific region. It is safe to say that a good place awaits every competent Chinese cook or house servant who may be thinking of coming to New York.

Eccentric Miss Hoyt.

New York, June 19.—Mary Irene Hoyt, the eccentric daughter of Jesse Hoyt, who has heretofore figured in various capacities before the public, was taken to Hackensack jail to-day in default of bail for assaulting her cook. Miss Hoyt resides in Englewood in a house by herself. Yesterday her cook displeased her and was discharged. The cook demanded two week's wages. A quarrel ensued, and it is said Miss Hoyt threw the cook out of the house. The latter went before Justice Dutton and had Miss Hoyt arrested. She was unable to give bail and was taken to jail. Finally, bail was secured, but not before she had been handcuffed by the jail officials because she was so violent.

Sparks' Unpopularity.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Representative Felton had a long interview with the President this afternoon. He explained the political situation on the Pacific Coast and incidentally mentioned the unpopularity of Land Commissioner Sparks, who has made enemies wherever any question involving title to public domains is involved. Mr. John P. Irish, who is representing the owners of the Los Pulgas ranch in San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, also had an interview with the President, and the indications are that Sparks' action in this case will be reversed.

Interstate Commerce Decision.

Silver State: The Interstate Commerce Commission has rendered a decision on the long and short haul clause of the Interstate Commerce Act, which prohibits a greater charge for transportation of passengers and property over a shorter than a longer distance under substantially similar circumstances and conditions. The decision was rendered upon the petition of roads which first applied for the suspension of section four of the act. It contains over 15,000 words, and its most important feature is the announcement that the Commission, after mature consideration, is satisfied that the statute does not require it in every instance to grant its order for relief before the carrier is at liberty in its tariffs to depart from the general rule. The carrier must judge what are substantially similar circumstances and conditions, which preclude a special rate, rebate or drawback, since no tribunal is empowered to judge until after the carrier has acted, and then only for the purpose of determining whether the action of the carrier constitutes a violation of the law. The carrier judges on peril of consequences, but the special rate, rebate or drawback which the carrier grants is not illegal when it is shown that the circumstances and conditions are not such as forbid it.

The Commission, therefore, will not undertake to decide in advance what constitutes or what does not constitute discrimination under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, but will leave the railroad companies, in fixing their tariffs, to act upon their own judgment and at their risk, subject to accountability before the Commission and courts in cases where complaint is made by interested parties of a violation of the law.
